Thomas E. Lloyd was called to the chair, and Andrew Sloan, Esq, was appointed secretary, whereupon a committee consisting of George A. Mercer, S. Yates Levy and Walter S Chisolm, Esqrs., was appointed to prepare suitable resolutions and report them to an adjourned meeting. The following resolutions were reported and unanimously adopted:

The members of this bar, having heard with deep concern and regret of the decease of the Hon. Linton Stephens, William Dougherty, Esq., and J. J. Pope, their recent associates in practice, deem it proper to give some expression to their feelings, and to this end do resolve as follows:

First, That in the death of these eminent gentlemen our profession has sustained a serious loss, and that we have been deprived of the influence and example of those whose merits fully entitled them to the high professional position they severally sustained.

Second, That as a token of our sincere respect for the memory of the deceased, we request that these proceedings and resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the court, and that they be published in the public journals of this city, and that a copy be transmitted to the families of the deceased.

HOW MR. TIPTON ECONOMIZED;

OR,

Practice Versus Preaching.

BY J. R. HARDEMANN.

"My dear, we must economize," thus Mr. Tipton to his better half.

"My love, economy is of two genders, masculine and femine. When shall we practice?" thus Mrs. Tipton responsively.

Thought Mr. Tipton himself—"Mind is of two genders also. Behold in me the glorious exponents of the mind masculine; in my spouse, the luckless inheritor of the mind feminine." Spoke Mr. Tipton to his spouse: "My dear, the levity of your response indicates how little you realize the stern necessity for the most rigid economy in your household affairs. I will not trouble you with business details, which, in all probability, your mind could not grasp, but beg you to take my word for it, that unless something turns up soon I must go under. Therefore, we must economize."

"We will economize," responded Mrs. Tipton solemnly and heroically.

Whereupon Mr. Tipton bestowed upon his better half a bland smile of approval that should have been ample compensation for any amount of self-denial both present and to come; pulled on his dog-skin gloves, took down his natty hat, and sauntered away to his place of business. Socially, the Tiptons stood A No. 1; financially they were a little shaky. Hence the dire necessity for economy.

Women are single-idead folk. Mr. Tipton had said that "unless something should turn up he should go under." Mrs. Tipton wasn't clear as to what he would go under, but she didn't want him to go under anything. For she loved her husband, did this little woman; so she bravely resolved that she wouldn't buy a thing, not a single thing, until John was entirely out of debt.

To do without anything new, and to make everything old last twice as long as possible, is what is called feminine economy, or economy positive.

To save when one can, without looking mean; to spend fifty dollars on the chance of making a hundred; to keep the women folks at home well in check; is what is called masculine economy, or economy speculative.

Understanding which, Mrs. Tipton desired to know which of the two was to be inaugurated in the Tipton family, hoping to be able from her spouse's response, to decide for herself, how shaky the Tipton finances really were.

Her lord's answer was decidedly uncompromising, so Mrs. Tipton made up her mind to economy positive.

A fresh flower twined in by her own deft fingers made her last winter's bonnet look almost as good as new. The gloves, whose finger tips were so suggestive of bursted muscadine skins, must be mended and worn awhile longer. John's credit must be saved, if she wore sackcloth and no gloves.

She must do all her visiting and church-going on pleasant days, for she did not have the moral courage to be seen in well-dressed crowds in that old gray shawl.

The old gray shawl stood out prominently in her mind's eye as she sat over the fire a week or two after John's above recorded harrangue; for it was very, very cold, and she did so want to pay some visits that very week.

As she pondered and sighed Mr. Tipton's latch-key was inserted in the door, and presently his portly figure stood upon the hearth-rug before his cloakless wife, enveloped in a brand new overcoat, nice, warm and handsome—a coat to attract immediate attention.

"Oh! John, dear, how nice!" and little Mrs. Tipton stood up on tip toe to pat the fur collar with affectionate hands.

"I rather like it myself," says Mr. T. complacently.

"How much did it cost, dear?" a little anxiously.

"Forty dollars," a little sheepishly.

"Oh! John, dear, wouldn't your old one have done a little while longer, at least while we're trying to economize?"

"Yes, there it goes," testily. "I suppose that is a woman's notion of economy. I'm to go in a threadbare overcoat in this confounded weather, catch a devil of a cold, have pneumonia, send for the doctor, pay him a bill of forty times forty, all of which is saved by a little prudent forethought in the timely purchase a decent coat."

Feminine economy was here so bewilderingly distanced by speculative economy that Mrs. T. sudsided into meek silence. For of course she did not want to get pneumonia any more than she wanted him to "go under."

By way of conducing to the pleasentness of a long evening at home, Mr. Tipton produced from his pocket an ominous looking package, which he laid down upon the work-stand with a slightly emphatic thump.

"My dear, there are the month's bills. If you have nothing particular to do this evening we will look them over together; I think it will assist us in our plan of retrenchment to read them over and note how many unnecessary purchases we have both made during the past month."

"Certainly, my love," answered Mrs. T., promptly; "though I feel pretty sure you will find nothing charged to my account that was not absolutely necessary."

"Mrs. Tipton, here is a green slop bucket, costing four dollars, that it seems to me might have been dispensed with."

"Mr. Tipton, here are no less than four bottles of Champagne on one page of this bill. Surely, my dear, you must have taken to hard drink."

"I suppose you would have me accept treat after treat down town without ever making any return. Please remember, my dear, that there are various small economies within a woman's sphere which would be simply meanness if practiced by a man." Then to his reading. "Mats, mats, mats! Upon my soul, madam, do you propose furnishing the house with mats? Are we to eat mats, sleep on mats, wear mats?"

"Mats save carpets, Mr. Tipton." She reads: "Cigars, cigars, cigars! Bless my soul, sir, do you propose furnishing the house with cigars? Are we to eat cigars, sleep on cigars, wear cigars?" (mockingly.)

"I presume," loftily, "you would not have me play sponge for my cigars, would you? And a man must smoke, else he might as well commit suicide." Here Mr. Tipton comes to the conclusion that bill-reading is neither instructive nor amusing, especially when one's wife so rapidly gets the better of one. So he turned skilfully from the retrospective to the prospective.

Mr. Tipton, in the halcyon days of bachelorhood, had been of rather a gay turn; had, in fact, been sportive or sporty; had kept his racing book; had spent not a few dollars on fancy dogs; had even leaned kindly toward chicken fighting.

But these were in the happy ante-bellum times, when he was a gentleman of leisure, and knew not the meaning of the dire word economy.

Economy now was the watchword of his life. He hurled it at his hapless wife in season and out of season. If he made a bet with Jones on the election and lost fifty dollars to him he paid it up like a man and went home and impressed upon his wife the stern necessity for economy (like a man again.) If the horse he had backed lost, he paid his debts of honor like a gentleman, and coolly denied his wife her promised black silk dress, on the score of inability to indulge her in such luxuries. But don't think Mr. Tipton not economical, I implore you, for he was, pre-eminently so, after a masculine fashion. What were his wagers but speculative economy? Supposing he had won fifty dollars from Jones, instead of losing it. Why, then Mrs. Tipton could have had her black silk dress without one dollar of actual outlay. Would not that have been economy?

Again, he won the pool, (as he should have done, according to every species of turf calculation,) what a nice little sum of pin money he could have generously handed over to Mrs. Tipton, without inconveniencing himself in any way. Verily, Mr. Tipton was all right theoretically; but fate was all wrong practically.

The long winter during which Mrs. Tipton practiced economy and Mr. Tipton talked it, wore away at last, and the mild spring influences began to make themselves felt.

The question of how to make a new-fashioned spring polonaise out of an old-fashioned overskirt was the latest problem that was racking Mrs. Tipton's brain, when all her brain-work was set at naught by the entrance into her neatly kept sitting room of her lord and master, closely followed by a great shaggy water dog.

"Oh! John, John! Where did that ugly monster come from? Please drive him out; he's spoiling my matting terribly with his monstrous paws."

"Ugly monster? That's all a woman knows about dogs. He's a perfect beauty and cheap as dirt."

"Cheap, John? You didn't buy that wretch?"

"Didn't buy him? Of course I did. You don't think I stole him, do you?"

"Oh, but John, dear, what do we want with a dog?"

"Well, my dear, I don't know that we exactly want a dog; but we're both uncommonly fond of ducks, and I take it that it's much cheaper for me to shoot my own ducks than to have to pay fifty cents a piece for every one we eat; and this dog was sold to me for a number one duck dog. He'll save his price in one season."

"For how much, John?" in a faint little voice.

"A hundred dollars," answered John, stroking the shaggy head of his economy complacently.

"A hundred dollars!" Mrs. Tipton brought the words out with a scream and a gasp. "Oh, John, when will we ever eat a hundred dollars' worth of ducks?"

"A hundred dollars' worth of ducks at fifty cents apiece is not such an unheard of quantity. Besides, we have the dog and the ducks, too, don't you see?"

Mrs. Tipton answered never a word. She belonged to that rare class of women who delight not in argument.

The hundred dollars was gone, and the dog was bought. That was enough. If John would indulge in speculative economy, she couldn't help it. She only wished the dog was a polonaise, or the ducks a black silk dress. But as wishing was of no avail, she brought into active operation her favorite motto of bearing and forbearing.

Mr. Tipton's canine speculation did not turn out as felicitously as he had hoped and expected, but surely it was hardly his fault, nor the dog's, that ducks were so uncommonly scarce that season.

The recollection of that hundred dollar purchase and the reflection of how many useful things she could have bought with it, was a sore point for many and many a day with little Mrs. Tipton; and if, when John returned from tramp after tramp duckless, covered with mud and infamy, if, I say, she did once in a while indulge in a little malicious "I told you so!" who can blame her?

But the grand triumph of speculative economy was reached by the theoretical Mr. Tipton fully six months after his dog purchase.

Mrs. Tipton's fair brow was corrugated with anxious lines one morning, for she knew not what to have for dinner. John had declared his intention of bringing an old chum home to dinner, and it did seem as if the larder was more than usually empty. If he had only given her warning over night, she might have thought up something—she might have saved off the breakfast. But now what was to be done? Oh, for the days when food was rained from heaven!

Providence answered her prayers! The door bell rang; her one servant ushered into her presence a small boy carrying under his arm a large chicken—a chicken with a suspicious looking comb.

"What is that?" asked Mrs. Tipton, wonderingly.

"A chicken-cock, mum," was the satisfactory reply.

"But where did it come from, and who sent it?"

"Boss sent it, mum."

Mrs. Tipton grew radiant. John was becoming thoughtful. He had sent the fowl up as an addition to her dinner. Tenderly she received the fluttering cock into her own fair arms, dismissed the carrier, and hastened to the kitchen.

"Kill him immediately, Betsy, and parboil him first, for I know he's tough. Poor John, in his efforts to economize, I suppose, thought an old chicken would go farther than two spring ones"—this latter clause to herself.

Dinner time came, so did Mr. Tipton and Mr. Tipton's friend.

A magnificently turned fowl graced the head of the table. Mr. Tipton smiled approvingly over its well stuffed proportions at his little wife. He plunged the carving fork into it, the stuffing gushed in a savory stream through the opening, and arose like incense toward his grateful nostrils. The carving knife followed the fork. Its motion was slow and labored. Its dawned upon Mr. Tipton that the magnificently turned fowl was a magnificent fraud. It was thought, villainously tough. The exertion of reducing it to slices brought beads upon his forehead.

"My dear, your poultry I am afraid was no fledgling."

"My love, you should have sent it up earlier in the day."

"I! sent it up! I've sent you no poultry today!"

"You forget, John," blandly, "a small boy brought it just two hours before dinner; and said you sent it."

With upraised knife and fork, with pale face and eyes full of horrified anticipation, Mr. Tipton falls backward in his chair gasping—

"What did he look like!"

"The boy or the chicken dear?"

"The chicken!" roared Mr. Tipton.

"It was a great old ugly spotted cock, with his comb cut like a dandy, and I can't imagine what possessed you to buy such an octogenarian for dinner."

"My pea soup! my pea soup!" groaned Mr. Tipton, pallid with misery.

"Your pea soup! your pea soup!" echoed Mrs. T. in a voice of wonderment. "John, dear John, what is the matter?"

The ghost of a sardonic grin passed over John's miserable face as he replied with cutting irony: "Nothing, my dear, except that you have boiled down $25 into that indigestible mass," and he buried the carving fork fiercely in the unoffending bosom of his dead game cock.

"Twenty-five dollars for a game cock! Oh, John, is that your notion of economy?" and Mrs. Tipton's voice was mournfully reproachful

"Mrs. Tipton, you understand nothing of these things. If that pea soup had not come to so untimely an end, through your ignorance, madam, he would have been worth his weight in gold to me. It was the greatest bargain I ever made. It was genuine economy, buying him; but now—" and he sighed as he smelled at the stuffing.

"John, dear," said Mrs. Tipton, softly, "we've lost so much by masculine economy lately, don't you think you'd better try a little of the feminine gender? Do, please, dear, or I really fear we shall go under."

Husbands who are prone to waste at one end while their wives are saving at the other, to you I commend Mrs. Tipton's advice.

Sterling's Southern Series

Readers, Orators & Copy Books.

THE undersigned now own the plates of this POPULAR SERIES; and as they are the only Purely Southern School Books offered in the market, we submit that it is to the interest of Teachers to patronize them. Send for circulars of Special Terms to Teachers—VERY LIBERAL. Specimen copies sent free for examination.

Prof. Orr, the Superintendent of Education for Georgia, says of them:

Messrs. J. W. Burke & Co., Macon, Ga.—GENTLEMEN: I have given to the Sterling Series of School Books, which you have had the kindness to leave with me, such examination as the limited amount of leisure at my command has allowed. With several books of the series I was already familiar, having added greatly to the interest of several public exhibitions, while engaged in active school work, by selections from their pages. While there ought not to be anything offensively sectional in our school literature, I must be allowed to say that it is with feelings of both pleasure and pride that I find in the pages of these books so liberal a recognition of Southern talent. I am glad, too, to learn that their publication is to be transferred to our own State. Southern independence will be soonest achieved by providing, as far as possible, every necessary for the supply of all our wants, both material and mental, upon our own soil. I will only add that I would be pleased to see the books extensively used.

Respectfully yours,
GUSTAVUS J. ORR,
State School Commissioner.

"SPERM LUBRICATOR."

E. H. KELLOGG, of No. 17 Cedar street, New York, is manufacturing an oil extensively known among dealers and consumers as his "SPERM LUBRICATOR," which has been thoroughly tested on all classes of machinery, and while it is not inferior to pure sperm in lubricating qualities, endurance of cold, freedom from gum or odor; costs only about two-thirds the price, and such as have long been the most tenacious advocates of Sperm oil only, who are induced to give it a trial, almost universally adopt it instead. nov26-d6m

ATLANTA:

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 17, 1872.

Notice.

We have but one General Traveling Agent—Col Thomas M. Acton.

☞ Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's husband is very ill. It is a very severe case of petticoat supremacy when a man has to get in a dying fix in order to be mentioned.

☞ The conducting of the investigation into the Credit Mobilier scandal secretly is creating much unpleasant comment. It looks as if the Congressmen were afraid to open doors to the developments.

The London Store.

The December number of this journal of fashion, published by Messrs. Schultz & Broughall for our popular London Store, is upon our table. It is eight-paged, and brimful of fashion matters and illustrations. Get a copy. It will repay perusal.

☞ The municipal election in Macon resulted in the re-election of W. A. Huff, Mayor; John A. McManus, Clerk; C. J. Williamson, Treasurer. The Aldermen elected were two Democrats and one Independent from each ward. Only about 2,000 votes were polled.

☞ This was an immeasurably mean thing that the Radical Congressmen perpetrated on the William and Mary College of Virginia.

The government owed $65,000 for war injuries—a valid, equitable claim. The bill paying the claim was saddled with an amendment forcing negro equality of privilege in the college, and thus its friends had to vote against the bill or open the college to the blacks.

Burned.

Miss Bessie Christian, daughter of Mr. H. R. Christian, was badly burned yesterday afternoon by her clothing taking fire from a grate while she was dressing. With remarkable presence of mind, she tore the burning clothing from her person, and thereby escaped, but with badly burned hands and arms. Nothing but the great presence of mind of the young lady saved her from being burned to death. It is hoped that the injuries she has received will result in nothing very serious. She is a very charming young lady, and has many friends who will be pained to learn of the accident.—Macon Telegraph.

The Supreme Court.

The resignation of Associate Justice Nelson takes from the Supreme Court of the United States the last of the old members of that body, who, in their day, added so much lustre to the judiciary of the country. The following is the present composition of the Court:

Name.	State.	Age.	Ap.
S P. Chase	Ohio	63	1832
Nathan Clifford	Maine	67	1868
N. H. Swayne	Ohio	61	1861
David Davis	Illinois	56	1862
Sam. F. Miller	Iowa	55	1862
Stephen s. Field	California	53	1863
Joseph P. Bradley	New Jersey	58	1870
Wm. Strong	Pennsylvania	63	1870
Ward Hunt	New York	—	1872

Grant don't seem to have much use for Southern Judges. Fifteen old Slave States, with their 13,000,000 of people, have no representation on the Supreme Bench. The place of Justice Wayne, of Georgia, was filled by a Northern man.

Washburne.

The following will show that Mr. Washburne, the United States Minister to France, is disposed to follow in the footsteps of his illustrious master, the great Presidential gift taker:

Minister Washburne is urging the passage of such an act as will enable him to accept an order, gratuity, or other testimonial, certifying the gratification of the German government at the manner in which he acted as a representative of that power in Paris during the Franco-Prussian war. As his zeal in this capacity was so great that M. Thiers stigmatized him as a spy, an imputation the Minister has never, so far as we know, resented, the proposed testimonial is doubtless of commensurate value. Considering that Germany declined to allow the United States to compensate the experts who framed the basis of the Emperor William's San Juan decision, it is hard to see how we can allow Germany to remunerate our man without perpetrating a shabbiness.

An Injustice to the Honorable Amos T. Akerman Corrected.

Some weeks ago we copied and editorially called attention to an extract from the Dalton Citizen, relating an incident injurious to the professional and personal integrity of the Hon. Amos T. Akerman. The purport of the extract was that after making a political speech in Dalton, Mr. Akerman was approached by a citizen, cursed and charged with having taken a thousand dollar fee to defend the citizen in a law case, and afterwards appeared against him in prosecuting said case. The account further states that Mr. Akerman did not deny the charge, but put the citizen aside with some remaks about letting old matters go.

It is not our purpose to do injustice to any one. Political opponents shall have the full lest justice always, at our hands. And we ever try to preserve the demarkation between personal and political attacks.

Mr. Akerman has shown us that the extract does him entire injustice, and we cheerfully correct the matter to the extent of the publicity given to it by THE CONSTITUTION.

Mr. Akerman states that the citizen referred to is Mr. Jack Martin, of Dalton, formerly of Habersham, whom he defended once when charged with murder. He states that Mr. Martin did not use to him the words recounted. He has letters from Mr. Sutton, who prosecuted the case, from Judge James Jackson, who presided as the Judge on the trial of the case, from General Wofford, who remembered the case, and from Judge Junius Hillyer, who was associated in the defense of the case, showing that he, Mr. Akerman defended Mr. Martin ably and refused a fee from the prosecution, and all complimenting the high professional character of Mr. Akerman.

A very grave injustice in this matter has been done to Mr. Akerman, which we hasten cheerfully and fully to set right, so far as lies in our power.

☞ The Bond Committee of the Legislature reported in favor of declaring null the indorsement of the State on the bonds of the Brunswick and Albany Railroad only because the road was not completed, and the bonds issued irregularly. Now the holders of those bonds propose to comply with the original act, and thoroughly complete the road on the condition that Georgia will declare her indorsement valid and binding. And will she not do so? We do not see how she can do less, at least so long as she respects her indorsement of the bonds of other railroads which have not done more than the bondholders of this road now propose to do.—Brunswick Appeal.

The Commercial Convention.

The Convention urges Congress to use funds in improving the Louisville canal, the Mississippi river at Desmoines, the Tennessee river, the Missouri river and the James river and Kanawha canal.

State aid to railroads has been deemed out of the parview of the convention. But a report was adopted urging the construction of more railroads across the continent below the snow line.

A report was adopted urging States to compel insurance companies to hold their capital and assets so as to be available to meet reverses; to reserve all profits over ten per cent on the capital stock until such reserve equals the technical reinsured fund. It recommends that the whole system of deposits for the security of policy holders be abolished. No company should be allowed to put more than one-twentieth of its capital on any one risk, and risks should be widely distributed.

A report in favor of the Atlantic and Great Western canal was adopted.

States were urged to legislate that railroads, as common carriers, should receipt in full for all property transported.

The question as to whether the government should buy up the telegraph of the country was animatedly discussed, there being a majority report for and a minority report against it. It was finally referred to the Executive Committee for a report at the next meeting.

Congress was urged to pass a law to enforce a uniform system of weights and packing, and to punish short weights and false packing.

The Convention adjourned to meet at Pittsburg on the first Monday of next September. An Executive Committee was appointed of one from each State, to bring subjects before Congress and the State Legislatures; to prepare reports and get up statistics for the next Convention, and communicate with other commercial bodies. W. W. Paine is the member from Georgia. Major B. E. Crane, of Georgia, the President of the Convention is the ex-officio Chairman of the Committee.

Truth Will Out.

Sooner or later truth will out. It is hard to chrystalize falsehood into permanent existence.

There has been some considerable attempt made to relieve General Sherman of the odium of burning Columbia. And his tart controversy with General Hampton will not be forgotten.

But at last the proof is coming to light. And strange to say the proof comes from Sherman himself, as the following will show. Sherman's "excitement" was the most creditable thing we have seen yet in connection with the bad matter:

"Gen. Sherman was examined before the American and British Commission to-day in regard to the burning of Columbia. He denied that he had issued orders to burn Columbia, but admitted that the army was greatly exasperated against South Carolina, and said this exasperation was increased by General Hampton's rear guard firing into his camp a night or two before entering Columbia, which exasperation he and his officers participated in, and this was known to the men. A correspondence was then shown to Gen. Sherman, purporting to have taken place between him and Halleck, while on his march to Columbia. The communication from Halleck desired him to destroy Charleston and sow it with salt, so that there might no more nullifiers or secessionists grow up there. To this Sherman, in reply, wrote that Charleston and Columbia would soon be in his hands, and Halleck would have no cause to complain of his treatment of them; that he had the Fifteenth corps with him, and that corps did their work well, and further, that he (Sherman) would not spare the public buildings in Columbia, as he did at Milledgeville. Gen. Sherman admitted, on his examination, that the correspondence was authentic. Gen. Sherman stated that he occupied Columbia with the Fifteenth corps. In reply to the question whether he kept the men in the works after taking possession of the city, he said no, he could not have done so to have prevented the burning of every town in the State of South Carolina. These responses were drawn out by representations of British claimants, who allege that their property in Columbia was destroyed wantonly and in violation of the usages of war. Gen. Sherman manifested a good deal of excitement during the investigation."

Delano and Joe Brown Going to Cuba.

The newspapers have attempted to attach some political importance to the proposed journey of Secretary Delano to Cuba. A Washington dispatch to the Baltimore Sun says:

There has been much discussion to-day over the reports that Secretary Delano was going to Cuba, in a semi-official capacity and with an ulterior object, possibly looking to the acquisition of that island by the United States. To the many friends who called on him to-day and inquired as the reports, the Secretary was emphatic in the assertion that the sole cause of his purpose to visit Cuba was the condition of his health. He expects to go in company with ex-Governor Joseph E. Brown, of Georgia, the President of the Georgia State railroad, in which corporation Mr. Delano has a large interest. There is no known authority under which Mr. Delano could, officially or semi-officially, visit Cuba with the motives that have been stated. But although no official significance whatever can be attached to his departure, it is not unlikely that while in the island he will keep his eyes open and acquaint himself thoroughly with the condition of affairs, and that on his return the President will receive the benefit of his observation and experience.

Carefulness in Old Age.

An old man is like an old wagon; with light loading and careful usage it will last for years, but one heavy load or sudden strain will break it and ruin it forever. So many people reach the age of fifty, or sixty, or even seventy, measurably free from most of the pains and infirmities of old age, cheery in heart and sound in health, ripe in wisdom and experience, with sympathies mellowed by age, and with reasonable prospects and opportunities for continued usefulness in the world for a considerable time. Let such persons be thankful, but let them also be careful. An old constitution is like an old bone—broken with ease and mended with difficulty. A young tree bends to the gale—an old one snaps and falls before the blast. A single hard lift, an hour of heating work, an evening's exposure to the rain or damp, a severe chill, an excess of food, the unusual indulgence of an appetite or passion, a sudden fit of anger, an improper dose of medicine—any of these or other similar things, may cut off a valuable life in an hour, and leave the fair hopes of usefulness and enjoyment but a shapeless wreck.

The New Alabama Senator.

On the 11th inst., the Alabama Legislature elected F. W. Sykes, of Lawrence county, United States Senator by a unanimous vote. The Montgomery Advertiser says of him:

"He was elected as a representative of the Conservative party of the State, having been in active sympathy with the Democratic and Conservative party for several years past. He was a Union man, but he could never be induced to forget his Southern sympathies, and will be respected for it by every decent man in the country. After the war Mr. Sykes was for some short time a Republican, and voted for the Fourteenth amendment to the Constitution, but the subsequent harsh policy of the Radical party did not meet his approval, and he joined the true Conservative organization of the State. He is a man of character, of fine intelligence, has many warm personal friends, is possessed of a handsome estate, and should he be admitted to his seat in the Senate of the United States will represent Alabama with great ability and fidelity."

THE WINTRY WAVE.—The cold atmospheric wave, which we were given to understand was confined to November, has been repeated during the week, stretching from the Pacific to the Atlantic. The idea seems to be gaining ground that this wave is repeated about twice a month. But further observation will be necessary to establish any fixed and certain results.

The present cold snap, which began last Monday in the higher latitudes, has spread east and south. The northern lakes are closed with ice, and so of the Hudson river. Snow three inches deep has fallen in Arkansas, and even in Augusta, Ga.

"Taking up the list of Senators and members of the Thirty-sixth Congress, we have the following:

"Benjamin Fitzpatrick, Senator from Alabama—a gentleman of quiet tastes, who, if living, has not been heard from since the war, and is not likely to come up again for office. [He is dead.]

"Hon. Clement C. Clay, Jr., United States Senator from Alabama, has entirely withdrawn from politics. He leads a very retired life, and his health at last advices was very feeble. He is not likely to be an aspirant for public honors, whether at home or abroad.

"Hon. Robert W. Johnson, United States Senator from Arkansas, has withdrawn from public life, and since the war has been engaged in the practice of law at Washington City.

"Hon. David L. Yulee, United States Senator from Florida, took no prominent part in the Confederate service, and has been devoted since to railroad matters. He is president of a rather sickly railroad, lying between Fernandina and Cedar Keys, called the Florida railroad

"Hon. Stephen L. Mallory, Senator from Florida. After his liberation from imprisonment at Fort Lafayette, Mr. Mallory entered upon the practice of the law at Pensacola, Florida. He has not figured prominently in politics since. He is a gentleman of temperate and conservative views, and anxious for a restoration and harmony between the two sections.

Hon. Alfred Iverson, United States Senator from Georgia, is now greatly advanced in years. He is out of political life. Hon. Robert Toombs, the other Senator from Georgia, has been more active as a very pronounced Bourbon, not willing to swallow Greeley, and though much admired by Georgians for his eloquence and genius, yet not very influential, by reason of his extreme views. Georgia's favorite son to-day, seems to be Gen. John B. Gordon, and since the death of her wisest statesman, the Hon. Howell Cobb, he has been the most decidedly representative man of this great and energetic common wealth.

"Of the Louisiana Senators, Mr. John Slidell is dead; and Hon. Judah P. Benjamin, standing in the front rank of the English bar and reaping a large professional income, may be regarded as henceforth and forever a British subject and quite out of the line of political speculations in America.

Mr. Jefferson Davis is President of the Carolina Life Insurance Company, of Memphis, and to this he gives the energies which he once so ardently devoted to a public career. It yields him a salary ample probably for the wants of himself and family. That Mr. Davis regards his political career as terminated and has no desire to re-enter upon such struggles is a notorious and conspicuous fact.

"The Hon. Albert G. Brown, Senator from Mississippi, is in private life. He is a gentleman of liberal conservative opinions, 'accepts the situation,' but if he has any political aspirations is not apt to have them gratified, inasmuch as his State is dominated by a large negro majority.

"The Hon. Trusten Polk, United States Senator from Missouri, has been in private life since the war. The great changes in Missouri from emigration and other causes have brought another class of men forward, and Mr. Polk is far too ambitious a gentleman to seek or desire official preferment.

"Of the two South Carolina Senators Gov. Hammond is dead. The others, Gen. James Chestnut, justly occupies a high position in the regard and confidence of his fellow citizens, and a gentleman of rare good sense and high ability, but he is not likely to come to the front.

"Hon. A. O. P. Nicholson, of Tennessee, United States Senator, has figured prominently since the war. He is now Chief Justice of the Supreme Bench of Tennessee, and is not likely to quit the bench for the political arena.

"Lewis T. Wigfall, of Texas, United States Senator, at the last account was practicing law at Baltimore, and out of politics completely.

"Of the two Virginia Senators, the Hon. R. M. T. Hunter alones survives. This gentleman has been engaged in agricultural and literary pursuits since the war, and has not mingled in political discussions, except during the recent campaign, when his speeches at Tammany Hall and at Richmond have challenged the admiration of all, including his adversaries, by their moderation, thoughtfulness and profound statesmanship.

"The members of the House of Representatives of this Congress under the disabilities are J. L. Pugh, David Clopton, George S. Houston, J. L. M. Curry, of Alabama; Chas. L. Scott, of California, now of Alabama; George S. Hawkins, of Florida; Martin J. Crawford, of Georgia; L. Q. C. Lamar, [disabilities since removed] and O. R. Singleton, of Mississippi; W. N. H. Smith, Burton Craig, of North Carolina; John McQueen, Wm. Porcher Miles, M. L. Bonham, of South Carolina; John H. Reagan, of Texas; Thos. Bocock, S. F. Leake, ex-Governor Wm. Smith, R. A. Pryor, By. M. Edmonson, of Virginia, and a few other less prominent.

"General John C. Breckinridge, now President of the Lexington and Big Sandy Railroad is, I believe, the only one excepted as a member of the Thirty-seventh Congress.

"Under the remaining list of exceptions I find the names of Hon. John A. Campbell, former Justice of the United States Supreme Court, and now engaged in a lucrative practice at the New Orleans bar; General Samuel Cooper, former Adjutant General of the United States army, now living, in his old age, near Alexandria, Virginia; Gen. Jo. Johnston, now agent of various insurance companies, at Savannah, Georgia; Gen. Beauregard, now engaged in business at New Orleans; Gen. Sam Jones, late a resident of Louisville, now professor at Oakland, California; Gen. Gustavus W. Smith, of Frankfort, Kentucky; Gen. Hood, formerly of Texas; Gen. B. S. Ewell, who was Stonewall Jackson's right arm in the war; Gen. D. W. Hill, who led the North Carolinians so bravely; Gen. G. W. Custis Lee, son of the famous Robert Lee and President of Washington and Lee University, Va; Gen. W. H. F. Lee, President of the Virginia State Agricultural Society; Col. Larkin Smith, of Georgia; Col. L. B. Northrop, ex-Commissary General of the Confederacy, now farming near Charlottesville, Va.; Professor M. F. Maury, Professor at Lexington, Va.; Capt. Brooke, the inventor of the system of deep sea soundings, which paved the way for the laying of the Atlantic cable; Gen. H. R. Jackson, of Georgia, former Minister to Austria; and lastly, Gen. William Preston, of Kentucky, former Minister at Madrid."

The Deluge—A Confirmation of the Bible Story from Chaldaic Sources.

We have received from the accomplished discoverer, Mr. George Smith, of the British Museum, the subjoined and most interesting account of the record of the Deluge, which, as we announced a day or two ago, he has lately deciphered from the Assyrian monuments:

"The cuneiform inscription which I have recently found and translated gives a long and full account of the Deluge. It contains the version or tradition of the event, which existed in the early Chaldean period at the city of Erech (one of the cities of Nimrod,) now represented by the ruins of Warka. In this newly discovered inscription the account of the Deluge is put as a narrative into the mouth of Xisuthrus, or Noah. He relates the wickedness of the world, the command to build the ark, its building, the filling it, the Deluge, the resting of the ark on a mountain, the sending out of the birds, and other matters. The narrative has a closer resemblance to the account transmitted by the Greeks from Berosus the Chaldean historian, than to the Biblical history, but it does not suffer materially from either. The principal differences are as to the duration of the deluge, the name of the mountain on which the ark rested, the sending out of the birds, etc. The cuneiform account is much longer and fuller than that of Berosus, and has several details omitted both by the Bible and Chaldean historian. This inscription opens up many questions of which we knew nothing previously, and it is connected with a number of other details of Chaldean history which will be both interesting and important. This is the first time any inscription has been found with an account of an event mentioned in Genesis."—London Telegraph.

TILTON AND THE WOODHULL SLANDERS.—It is intimated that Theodore Tilton will publish a statement in the Golden Age, denying the domestic irregularities recently alluded to by Woodhull and Claflin. His statement has been ready for some time, but was withheld until the women were released from jail. Tilton at first determined to ignore the whole matter, but has been so severely pressed that he has determined to make the statement.—Cincinnati Gazette.

THE DEAD STAGE KING.

Some Very Interesting Reminiscences of the Famous Forrest

From the New York Sun.

The news of the sudden death of Mr. Edwin Forrest exciting much interest amongst all those belonging to or interested in theatrical matters, the writer yesterday afternoon called upon a gentleman who for many years was closely, even intimately, associated with Mr. Forrest. He said:

"For many years Mr. Forrest and I were constantly associated together, and from the time of our first meeting up to the present our intercourse continued harmoniously without flaw or break."

"What is your estimate of his character?"

"He was one of the most straightforward and most genially honest men who ever lived. His word was literally, in Scripture lanuage, 'yea, yea,' and 'nay, nay.' Sometimes and in many matters his honesty of tongue and purpose were quite the reverse of pleasant. But although brusque in general manner, now and then offensively so towards those whom he did not like, when conversing with a friend and delivering his opinion of men and things he was as agreeable a companion as one could wish to find. I might, perhaps, summarize him by saying that his character was like his acting, rugged and irregular. He combined in himself many very different qualities—liberal and at the same time very stingy. No one ever asked him for aid to any charity to which he did not promptly respond, save only when that charity was asked in the form of a religious demand. If a freak took him, or he thought the object a deserving one, he would give liberally, sometimes from the mere humor of the thing. He was once playing in a Western town, when one of the minor actors annoyed him terribly by persisting in reading his few lines incorrectly. Forrest showed him several times how to do it, but to no purpose, and then commenced to abuse him. 'Look here, Mr. Forrest,' finally said the poor fellow in sheer despair, 'it's all very nice for you, with your fifty dollars a night to talk that way, but what can you expect from me, who gets six dollars a week!' Forrest said only, 'You are right; I ought not to expect much for that sum,' and left him, but on the conclusion of the engagement sent him a check for forty dollars, with a recommendation that he act up to the worth of that."

"You have said that he would not contribute to religious objects?"

"Nor would he, although essentially a religious man. He was not fond of creeds nor formulas. Despite his ill luck in marriage he was fond of the society of women, and I never saw him in a gentler mood than when he was talking of or with one. His respect for truth in others as well as in himself, was singular. He had almost a reverence for facts—anything that was real, actual—and I have frequently heard him say in his forcible style that the man who refused to accept any truth was an ingrained liar. I have referred to his outspoken honesty, a quality which he appreciated in others as highly as he valued it in himself. For instance, at one period of our acquaintance I was the critic for a daily and weekly paper. At the time to which I allude he announced 'Claude Melnotte.' I told him very frankly that he was not as young as he once was; that the character was a very youthful one—in short, that he was too old. He did not take the hint very gracefully, and acted the part. The next day I gave him six lines, referring merely to the elocution and reading. He did not notice the absence of other comments, but when he saw my extended criticism in the weekly paper he was slightly irritated, and with good reason, for I had told the truth—that his stage presence was bad, and that it was a character which he could never perform. We did not quarrel, for he knew that I was as outspoken as he, and the matter was dropped until some time later. Then I went to see a now celebrated actor play Claude Melnotte at Winter Garden. The next morning I told Mr. Forrest: 'I thought that your Claude was about as bad as anything could possibly be, but since I have witnessed Mr. ——'s performance I must say that he has the advantage of you.' Dubious as this compliment was Mr. Forrest received it with a deep stomachic grunt of satifaction."

"How was he in his relations with other actors?"

"Just as he was with everybody whom he met. If they happened to please him, well and good; if not, it was uncomfortable for them if they came in contact with him. To use a slang word, he was extremely apt to 'bully' all in the theatre, from the manager down. But he once met his match. It was when was he playing at the old Broadway Theatre, near Pearl street. His pieces were followed by an exhibition of lions by their tamer, a certain Herr Driesbach. Forrest was one day saying that he had never been afraid in all his life—could not imagine the emotion. Driesbach made no remark at the time, but in the evening, when the curtain had fallen, invited Forrest home with him. Forrest assented and the two, entering a house, walked a long distance through many devious passages—all dark—until finally Driesbach, opening a door, said, 'This way, Mr. Forrest.' Forrest entered and immediately heard the door slammed and locked behind him. He had not time to express any surprise at this, for at the same moment he felt something soft rubbing against his leg, and putting out his hand touched what felt like a cat's back. A rasping growl saluted the motion, and he saw two fiery, glaring eyeballs looking up at him. 'Are you afraid, Mr. Forrest?' asked Driesbach, invisible in the darkness. 'Not a bit.' Driesbach said something; the growl deepened and became hoarser, the back began to arch and the eyes to shine more fiercely. Forrest held out two or three minutes; but the symptoms became so terrifying that he owned up in so many words that he was afraid. 'Now let me out you infernal scoundrel,' he said to the lion-tamer; 'and I'll break every bone in your body.' He was imprudent there, for Driesbach kept him, not daring to move a finger, with the lion rubbing against his leg all the time, until Forrest promised not only impunity but a champagne supper in the bargain."

"He leaves quite an amount of property, I believe."

"Yes, full if not over $1,000,000. His library is, with the exception of that in the British Museum, the finest and richest extant in Shaksperians. You probably recollect that he bought the greater part of Burton's superb collection, and should his books come to the hammer, they will furnish a magnificent feast for bibliographers."

"Have you any idea as to the disposition of his money?"

"I think that the greater part of it is bequeathed to establish a school for actors; such at least was his intention, though whether his will carries it out of course I cannot tell. As he has no family and no near relatives, the remainder is to be devoted to building an asylum for old actors. Naturally, I cannot say that positively, but I think time will prove me correct in my surmises. If so used it will fitly perpetuate his memory as one of the greatest, if not the greatest, of American actors, and as one who sought to found a national school of acting and by constant liberality to produce a national drama."

He Couldn't Drink Wine.

From the Fat Contributor's Saturday Night.]

That was a noble youth, who, on being urged to take wine at the table of a famous statesman in Washington, had the moral courage to refuse. He was a poor young man, just beginning the struggle of life. He brought letters to the great statesman, who kindly invited him home to dinner.

"Not take a glass of wine?" said the great statesman in wonderment and surprise.

"Not one simple glass of wine?" echoed the statesman's beautiful and fascinating wife, as she arose, glass in hand, and with a grace that would have charmed an anchorite endeavored to press it upon him.

"No," said the heroic youth resolutely, gently repelling the proffered glass.

What a picture of moral grandeur was that! A poor, friendless youth refusing wine at the table of a wealthy and famous statesman, even though proffered by the hands of a beautiful lady.

"No," said the noble young man, and his voice trembled a little and his cheek flushed "I never drink wine, but (here he straightened himself up and his voice grew firmer) if you've got a little good old rye whisky, I don't mind trying a snifter."

☞ In October, during Mrs. Greeley's severe illness, we wrote him a letter of sympathy, and added that it might be well for his friends to send George W. Hatton, the colored orator, to Chicago. Mr. Greeley replied as follows:

NEW YORK, October 29, 1872.

My Dear Sir: We can get no negro votes for several reasons.

1. We have no money.
2. They do not believe we can succeed.
3. They don't believe in us.

My friend, spend no money that you cannot spare, and let the election go as it shall please God

My wife is better. Yours,

WASHINGTON, December 16, 1872.

The defense of the interference of the Federal authorities in the Louisiana matter, issued by the Attorney General to-day, is regarded as a very weak defense of an act of usurpation.

Grant's interference in Louisiana and Alabama, finds no favor anywhere, and is viewed with alarm even among Republicans.

It is very probable that the matter will come before Congress in some shape, before the present session closes.

Senator Hill has arrived and was in his seat to-day.

CONGRESSIONAL.

Senate—Three long speeches on French spoliation bill occupied the day.

The nominations of C. M. Hamilton, for Collector of Customs at Key West, Jacob Henry, for Postmaster at Decatur, Ala., Miss A. Robbins for Postmistress of Aberdeen, Miss., were sent in.

The Supreme Court ex parte T. Jefferson Greer, on a habeas corpus to the Marshal of South Carolina. Greer was held under a bench warrant from the Circuit Court under the indictment of felony, under the Enforcement Act. The question was one of jurisdiction and power of the Court to discharge the prisoner. The Court voted four and four, and the writ was denied. A discussion of the case would have involved the constitutionality of the Enforcement Act. The Senate adjourned.

The Clerk of the House has designated the New Orleans Republican, the Era, of Baton Rouge, and the Intelligencer, of Monroe, La., as official journals.

HOUSE.—Many bills were presented, including an appropriation for payment awards of court of claims, repealing tobacco tax, refunding taxes collected on raw cotton, repealing taxes on spirits made from fruits, removing all political disabilities, importing duty free iron for the Helena and Iron Mountain Railroad, surveying the steamboat canal from Ferdinanda, Florida, to New Orleans, improving certain Florida harbors and rivers.

Mr. Cox, of New York, moved to suspend the rules, and adopt a resolution reciting that the State Government of Louisiana is now administered by orders from the Federal Courts, supported by bayonets, such a condition of things being subversive of civil government and dangerous to liberty, they request the President to inform the House why the Executive of the United States interfered in the affairs of that State, giving all the facts. Also, to give all information relative to the conduct of E. H. Durell, United States Judge in that State, so that the House may determine what steps, it any, ought to be taken in consequence of such interference in the political affairs of Louisiana.

Stevenson, of Ohio, asked Mr. Cox to omit the preamble.

Cox's consented to that and to the insertion of the words, if not incompatable with the public interests.

Eldridge, of Wisconsin, asked Cox not to insert those words, there could be no such thing as incompatibility with the public interests in a matter of that kind. Congress was entitled to know by what right or authority the President interfered in the Civil Government of a State.

Cox said he had inserted these words so as to have the resolution adopted without any partisan or acrimonious discussion. He only wanted the facts to come out and all the basis for the President's action in that most important matter.

Sypher, of Louisiana denied that the President had interfered in any way in the Louisiana matter except to order the execution of the mandates of the United States Court. Cox declined to take the statement of Sypher or of the newspapers in the matter.

Sypher—I will furnish the proof of it.

Cox—The gentleman cannot speak for the President. I want the information from the President.

Bingham, of Ohio, suggested to Cox to strike out the allusion to Judge Durell, as the information which the President would furnish would necessarily cover the point.

Cox said he did not intend to amend the resolution any further.

Scofield, of Pennsylvania, asked Cox to omit the closing words of the resolution, "so that the House may judge," etc., which, he thought, implied that the House would do something perhaps offensive.

Mr. Cox declined to accede to the suggestion of many Republican members. Let us vote it down. The resolution was rejected—yeas 79, nays 99—a hearty vote.

Mr. Stevenson, of Ohio, then offered a resolution, which was adopted without a division: A requisition on the President to communicate information relative to the condition of affairs in Louisiana, and what action, if any he has taken with regard thereto. Adjourned.

Newland, accompanied by Dr. Quackenboss, who was a relative of the deceased, headed the little procession that entered the gate, the pall bearers following. The coffin was decorated with a floral cross and a wreath. Rev. Dr. Newland read the funeral service, while the surrounding friends bowed in silence with uncovered heads. At the conclusion of the prayers the coffin was lowered into the vault, and the last solemn act being finished, the assemblage slowly retired. At the vault, in addition to the distinguished pall bearers, were several prominent persons in the theatrical profession, and a delegation of the Lotus Club, from New York, headed by Mayor Hall.

GEORGIA STATE AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY,
SECRETARY'S OFFICE,
ATLANTA, GA., November 26, 1872.

I certify that the subjoined is that part of the report of the Judges at the late Fair, relating to the premiums awarded the Singer Sewing Machine:

No. 866, Best Family Machine: Premium awarded to Singer Sewing Machine.

No. 867, Best Manufacturing Machine: Premium awarded to Singer Sewing Machine.

M. JOHNSTON, Ass't Sec'ty.

From the above official document, the public will see who states the fact, Mr. Wilds, of the "Domestic," or myself, as to what Sewing Machine took the premium at the Georgia State Fair.

dec 1-1m R. T. SMILLIE.

MR. SMILLIE may have bored the officers of the Georgia State Agricultural Association out of a certificate of some kind in favor of the sewing machine he represents, but the report of the committee, copied below, shows the facts of the case:

FAIR GROUNDS GEORGIA AGRICULTURAL ASSOCIATION, November 19, 1872.—Colonel H. D. Capers, Superintendent Fine Arts Department: * * The Domestic, as a family machine, is the best.

[Signed] J. C. PECK,
W. H. OSTLER,
EDWARD PARSONS.

I dislike very much to call the veracity of any one in question, and will give Mr. Smillie the credit of believing what he claims. He has repeated it so often, I really believe he thinks it is true that he was awarded something.

It is due Mr. Johnson to state that I do not desire to question his veracity in the card, published above, as I have always found him gentlemanly and polite. It was by his courtesy that I made the copy of the official report as published above, of the only Committee who examined the construction of Sewing Machines.

"WEBSTER'S DAY."—Hereafter in the annals of DeKalb county Saturday the 14th of December, will be known and distinguished as "Webster's Day." Last Saturday in accordance with the request of Judge Webster, the faithful and efficient Ordinary, the people came together and planted out trees and shrubbery in the Court-house square. Men, women and children were there, and seemed to take great pride in the work. As the trees and shrubbery grow up, beautifying and adorning the square, they will form a living monument to the memory of Judge Webster.

THE late municipal elections in both Atlanta and Albany resulted in the triumph of the regular Democratic tickets. The elections in both cities are represented to have been conducted without the development of the usual personal animosities. In Atlanta we regret to see the name of our Friend, Judge Hayden, amongst the defeated candidates for the Board of Aldermen. Atlanta has no more popular citizen than Judge H., but he made the mistake of being an independent candidate.—Early County News.

ELECTION OF JUSTICES AND CONSTABLES.—There is considerable confusion throughout the State respecting the time for the next election of Justices of the Peace and Constables. The act of 1869 controls in this matter. It prescribes that "The next election for Justices of the Peace shall be held on the first Saturday in January, 1873, and every fourth year thereafter." While section 1,355 of the revised code says, "Constables are elected on the same day, month and place that Justices of the Peace are, and by the same class of voters, once in two years." The act of August 20th, 1872, does not repeal these laws.

Water Works.

Editors Constitution:—It is clear to the most common observer that efficient works for the supply of water in our city of Atlanta, has become an absolute and imperative necessity; and hence an early and calm discussion of the most practicable mode, should at once be encouraged as preliminary to their construction. The incoming administration will no doubt avail themselves of such information as will guide them in adopting the plan or system of water works best adapted to the location, so as to supply our wants with the least possible expense.

1. If a supply of water can be had by sinking one or more wells within the corporate limits of the city it will be found by far the cheapest and most satisfactory.

Second. A canal of 20 or 30 miles in length, bringing water from the Chattahoochee, in connection with steam power in the city for the elevation and distribution of the water from tall iron tanks, would cost at least one million of dollars.

Third. An engine of sufficient power, located at the railroad bridge, on the Chattahoochee, with large main pipes, eight or nine miles in length, together with elevated tanks and distributing pipes, will cost seven or eight hundred thousand dollars.

If wells can be made successful, an expense of less than five hundred thousand dollars will make the work complete.

The Lynch Rock Quarry is a good location for a water-works well.

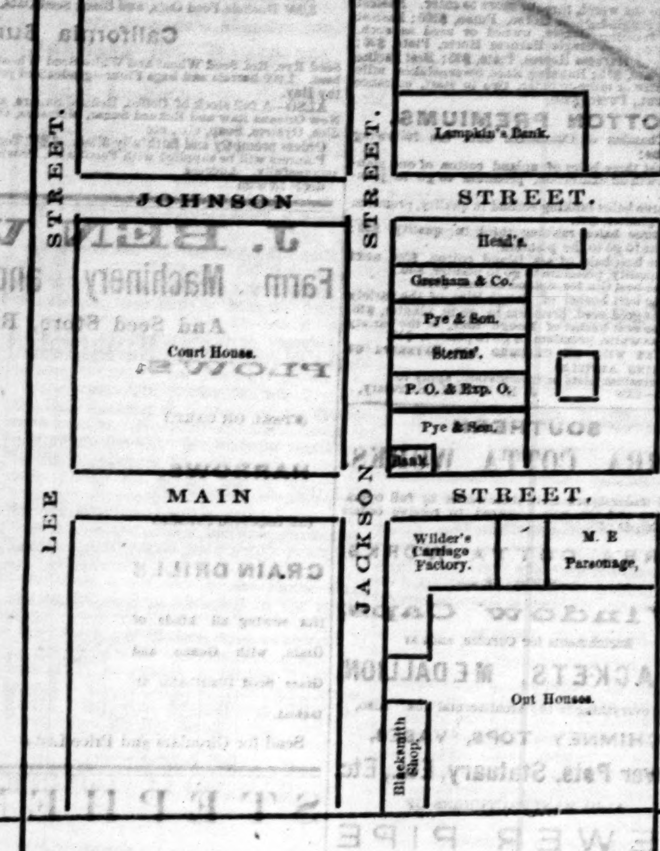
Destructive Conflagration in Forsyth—Loss Estimated at One Hundred Thousand Dollars.



MAP OF THE BURNT DISTRICT IN FORSYTH.

Our Sunday morning edition contained a telegram from Forsyth concerning the fire. We give above a map of the burnt section, with the following particulars:

At 7 o'clock last Saturday evening the quietude of the beautiful town of Forsyth was disturbed by the thrilling cry of "Fire." A dense smoke was seen ascending from the southern portion of Wilder's carriage factory, a two-story wooden building at the corner of Main and Jackson streets. The fire is supposed to have been caused by a stove in the millinery store of Mrs. Wilder and Miss McGinty, as the pipe passed through the roof, and here the smoke was thickest.

The carriage factory was one of the best arranged establishments in the South. Notwithstanding some of the vehicles were saved, the loss in materials and machinery of all kinds is very heavy. The factory with all its valuable contents melted like wax before the flame. The Methodist Parsonage, in the rear, was the next to go.

The Fire King then crossed over Main street, taking successively in its destructive course, the banking house of Pye & Son, grocery house of Pye & Son, dry goods and millinery, L. Gresham & Co., dry goods Pye & Son, Express Company Office, and Post-office confectionary of J. Stearns, on the first floor. All the upper part was occupied by the Pye Hotel, owned by Major Scarborough. The house occupied by Gresham & Co., belonged to Mrs. A. Moss. In the rear was a small building belonging to W. H. Head which was also destroyed. In the short space of one hour and twenty minutes, all these buildings were in ashes.

INSURANCE.

Mr. Wilder was insured in the Virginia Home, $3,000 on the building; Georgia Home, $1,500 on stock. Actual loss over insurance, $10,000.

The Methodist parsonage was insured in the Georgia Home for $1,000. Loss over insurance $1,200.

Pye & Son had no insurance on buildings; insured on stock in the Southern Mutual for $4,000. Loss over insurance in building and stock, $12,000.

Mr. Stearns was insured in the New York Home on building for $400.

L Gresham & Co, insured on stock in North Missouri company for $3,000. Loss over insurance $2,000.

Mrs Mosses' building insured in Southern Mutual for $500; loss over insurance $1,000.

Mrs Wilder and Miss McGinty had no insurance on their stock.

The Pye Hotel was not insured. Loss on building $8,000.

Major Scarborough had no insurance on furniture in Pye Hotel. Loss $2,500.

Head's building was not insured. Loss estimated at $500.

All the moneys and papers deposited in safes were found in perfect preservation after the fire was over.

INCIDENTS OF THE FIRE.

The excitement was very intense. Much alarm prevailed. The people were completely in the toils of the igneous foe, as there is not a fire engine in the town. A telegram was sent to Macon for fire companies, and the fire alarm was sounded and the Macon firemen responded at once, but the telegram was countermanded. Some of the firemen, however, went to Forsyth.

The stealing and pilfering was unprecedented. A lady coming in town next morning, about two miles out, captured a negro driving one of Wilder's new buggies, loaded down with stolen articles. In the hurry of gathering up the goods those of different parties were thrown together in "confusion worse confounded." A number of articles were consumed after being brought out on the streets.

HONOR TO FAIR WOMAN.

One of the most honorable features of the trying occasion was the heroic conduct of the ladies. They rendered efficient and invaluable service in saving goods from the devouring element. The conduct of the ladies of Forsyth on Saturday night are worthy to be handed down to future generations by the historian's pen.

THANKS.

Our reporter would return his thanks to Messrs. J. A. Bean, Major Scarborough, Carey King, Lum Gresham, and others, for their kind attentions and services in obtaining these facts.

RAINY yesterday and last night.

THE CATHOLIC FAIR.

It has been agreed to carry on the Fair for the present week. Last night the inclement weather cut down the attendance; still those who were present enjoyed a pleasant occasion. The great object of interest was voting for the shillaleh. Ed. Mercer and Jerry Lynch—both popular men—were voted for. The ballot was closed at 10 o'clock. The vote stood, Mercer 1,690; Lynch 1,519.

THE COURTS.

Fulton Superior Court—The Elliott Case Again on Trial.

The case of the State vs. Charles F Elliott, charged with an assault with intent to murder was taken up yesterday in Fulton Superior Court. He was tried, convicted, and sentenced at a former court; his case was then carried up to the Supreme Court and he was granted a new trial. The day was consumed in hearing the evidence, which did not vary materially from that given in at the first trial and published in THE CONSTITUTION at the time.

Messrs Hill & Candler, Gartrell & Stephens, E P Howell, and J Thomas Glenn, Solicitor-General represented the State, and D F & W R Hammond, C Peeples, Hulsey & Tignor, A C Garlington, S B Spencer and M J Ivey, the defendant.

The evidence was concluded last night, when court adjourned until this morning. Argument will be heard this morning in the case. There will be no Grand Jury until Wednesday.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT.

Judge Erskine on yesterday resumed the September session of the Court which had been interrupted by his going to Savannah to hold Court for the Southern Circuit.

The following equity causes were set down for a hearing to-day:

The Western Union Telegraph Company vs. The Western and Atlantic Railroad Company. L E Bleckley for complainant and Pope & Brown for defendant.

William Atwater et al. vs. S A Durand et al. Arnold & Broyles for complainants. Gartrell, Collier, for defendants.

Mrs L J Rowland, next friend, vs. Francis M Rowland, executor. Mynatt, Pope & Brown, for complainant. W Akin, L E Bleckley, for defendant.

JUSTICE'S COURT.

Justice Butt yesterday committed John Washington (col.) to jail for obtaining money under false pretences. He besought assistance on the ground that his wife was dying for a week or so.

HAPPY CAL WAGNER'S MINSTRELS.—This famous troupe appear at DeGives' on Wednesday and Thursday nights next. The Memphis Appeal says of them:

"Happy Cal. Wagner's famous Minstrel Troupe gave their first unique entertainment at the new Memphis Theater, last night, to a house crowded in every part. There was a very large proportion of ladies in the dress circle, while there was not a vacant seat in the parquette. The upper authorities turned out in full force, and made the welkin ring again with their shouts and applause.

It was the largest house of the season, and the old Memphis favorites, Cal Wagner and Fred Wilson, got a very warm reception from their numerous old friends on making their apperance before the curtain. The troupe is without exception the finest that ever appeared on the Memphis stage, and there was not a single act in the programme but what could be witnessed by the most fastidious. Genuine wit, pure and not buffoonery appears to be the mottoes of the comedians, and the jokes and comic sayings of Cal Wagner as Tambo, and Sam Price as Bones were new, fresh, racy and sparkling, never failing to secure the heartiest of applause and laughter.

Mr. Wagner's old plantation melodies introducing "My Old Kentucky Home, Good-Night," with invisible chorus, brought to the minds of many the happy times of old plantation days and the origin of negro minstrelsy. Mr. Sam Price was particularly eccentric in all his acts, and rendered himself a general favorite. Mr. Fred Wilson was excellent in his Grecian statuaries, and by way of encore, played several airs on the harmonicon, which were rapturously applauded. Booker and Canfield's songs and dances were new, original and provocative of much laughter, receiving the compliment of a triple encore.

The Selections from the Arion, by the "California Quartette"—Messrs. Wheeling Brothers and J. W. Freith—were given with great taste and feeling, and enthusiastically received by the audience. Dr. Fox Brown's jig was first-rate, and loudly applauded. The capital entertainment concluded with an amusing farce, and the vast audience left the theatre in the greatest of good humor. To-night the same programme will be repeated, when the house is certain to be crowded to overflowing."

JERRY F. GLEN.—The funeral cortege attending the remains of Jerry F. Glen to the cemetery yesterday was large and imposing. He was esteemed by all who knew him for his social qualities and manly bearing. He was an exemplary young man in all the relations of life.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.—The High Schools will close for the present term with public exercises on Thursday, 19th instant, from 9 A. M. to 1 P. M.

The Browning Society of the Girls' High School will meet at 11 o'clock.

The Grammar Schools will close on Friday, 20th instant. Exercises commence at 9 A. M. and close at 1 P. M.

ROSE & HARRY WATKINS.—Owing to the inclement weather last night, only a small audience greeted Rose & Harry Watkins at Concordia Hall. The thrilling Dramatic Romance of "Kathleen Mavourneen or under the Spell" was performed to the satisfaction of all who witnessed it. Mrs Watkins as "Kathleen" and Mr Watkins as "Terence O'More," were life-like and original and brought down the house. Rose and Harry are general favorites in the South. They will give their last performance to-night at Concordia Hall, in Trodden Down or under two Flags. We predict for all who attend a rich feast. Give them a full house.

Local and Business Notices.

IMPORTANT NOTICE!—The undersigned wants SEVENTY-FIVE FIRST-CLASS Sewing Machine Salesmen, to take charge of offices and canvass different parts of Georgia, Alabama, South Carolina and Florida, to whom better inducements will be given than have ever before been offered. None need apply but such as can give bond with approved security. Sewing machine men will find our NEW machine, just improved—the lightest running machine extant, and in every respect the most desirable machine to sell. The Howe Machine Company, is now manufacturing seven hundred machines per day, and such are their facilities and demand for this favorite machine that they are now preparing to manufacture, from the first of January, 1873, ONE THOUSAND machines per day, a larger number than is claimed by any other two similar establishments in the world. This Company has the largest manufactory in the United States, having in their four story establishment, erected within the year 1872, an area of one hundred and fifty-two thousand four hundred and sixty square feet, or three and a half acres of floor, unquestionably the largest manufactory, and possessing a greater amount of experienced mechanical skill and more suitable machinery than any other in the world. This increased demand shows the great popularity of "THE ORIGINAL" first invented and latest improved sewing machine.

THIS GUANO has been in extensive use for seven years in Georgia and adjoining States. Experience demonstrates that 200 pounds per acre increases the crop from double to three-fold the natural yield, thus making one hand equal to two, and one acre equal to two.

The policy of the Pacific Guano Company is to sell a fertilizer unsurpassed for excellence at the lowest price and look to large sales and small profits for reasonable returns on capital invested, hence this valuable Guano is put into market at the present low price to consumers.

Planters are requested to put in their orders early to insure prompt delivery.

Messrs. Herrings & Farrell, Nos. 251 and 252 Broadway, New York:

Gentlemen—In the "Great Fire" which has destroyed the business portion of this city, we had in use one of your "Champion" Safes, and which we were unable to recover from the ruins until this P. BOSTON, November 14, 1872.

Messrs. Herrings & Farrell:

Gentlemen—Our store, No. 38 Summer street, was burned in the late "Great Fire" in this city of Nov. 9 and 10. We consider this fire no ordinary test for safes, and take pleasure in giving facts as above. Very truly yours,

NOTHING CARES.

Ay, nothing cares; the buds peep out
Through the glory of waving grasses;
The lime-tree flings its passionate breath
To the light wind as it passes.
The roses cluster, crimson and white,
In affluent glow and bloom;
The sunshine lends its careless light
To the cradle and the tomb.
The wild birds sing 'mid the wedding chimes,
Or the mourners' sobbing prayers;
The seasons keep their stated time,
Life passes; nothing cares.

Our joy cannot soften the keen gray skies,
Or the sting of the glittering frost;
Our cry cannot sadden the Spring's sweet sighs
On the merry breezes tossed;
Our woe does not cloud the Summer's flash,
As it gladdens o'er land or sea;
Our triumph stalks down when the Autumn hush
Gleams its grave tranquillity.
Oh! never a touch of sympathy
Great Nature's magic wears;
We strive and stumble, and moan, and d'e;
Life passes; nothing cares.

Oh! love them, while our days are bright,
Beauty, and life, and flowers;
Let them give our Summer added light,
Let them bless our few bright hours;
And when the certain shadows creep
Over the path we go,
Let us turn away from it all and weep,
And bear, as we may, our woe;
Asking no comfort from outward things,
That but jar and mock our prayers,
For a bitter truth experience brings—
We die, and nothing cares.

THE MACON SUICIDE.

One of the Most Remarkable Wounds Ever Witnessed.

The Vocal Chords Silent---Eternal Hunger and Certain Starvation.

[From the Macon Enterprise.]

In our account of this melancholy affair yesterday, we failed to give any description of the wound made by the razor. We are indebted to Dr. Hammond, one of the attending physicians, for the following detailed description:

Mrs. Bone cut her throat from the sterne-cleido-mastordious muscle of the right, to the corresponding muscle of the left side, serving all the intervening tissues of the neck down to the cervical vertebra. The carotid arteries and jugular veins were laid bare, but not divided. The wind (trachea) was cut across, above the pomum adami; the razor being directed upwards, severed the integuments above the glottis and epiglottis, and passing over the os hyoides, just beneath the tongue, detaching these important organs from the larynx and pharynx. The pharynx, at its inferior portion, was cut across just at its junction with the æsophagus (gullet) and all the intervening tissues to the cervical vertebra. The organism thus transfixed retracted, or rather dropped down to the top of the breast bone, leaving a large and frightful gash three inches in extent. As the os hyoides was detached from the rima all the muscles that arise from the different cartilages of the windpipe and which are inserted into the os hyoides were put through, consequently their several offices were suspended, which was illustrated by the pathological effects upon the physiological action. There are eight small muscles arising from various directions which are inserted into the hyoid bone, so-called from its resemblance to the Greek letter U. These slight muscles move this little bone in every conceivable direction; they elevate and dilate the pharynx to grasp the food, then contract and propel it into the œsophagus (swallow) to be from thence conveyed into the stomach. The offices of these muscles being destroyed, as also those concerned in the respiration and the voice, it will be at once perceived that the fearful prospect of starvation is sooner or later to be realized by the unfortunate and much to be pitied sufferer.

The vocal chords are silent, consequently no intelligent sound or word will probably ever be uttered by her again. She cannot eject the sputa and morbid secretions from her mouth and throat, hence there is a constant dread of suffocation. She failed to cut the nerves of taste, and therefore craves food, as she is hungry; she calls for something to cool her thirst and for something to eat! but she is unable to swallow. If she sips a little ice water, it glides over her parched tongue mechanically and out at the wound in her neck, which affords her no relief. She is thus tantalized from day to day. She often exclaims "I am hungry!" "I am starving," but the little muscles which convey the savory food into the pharynx are paralized and she cannot swallow!

All the surgical skill yet employed has failed to afford her any relief. And it is probable that no human agency can repair the injury.

Business Notes.

The phosphates of South Carolina have become an important feature in commerce. Of the exports from the port or Charleston the larger proportion goes to Great Britain. Canada also takes a considerable quantity.

The pork packing trade in St. Louis and other Western cities is seriously compromised by the high prices of hogs in comparison with the present rates of the provision market. Hogs must be forced down or product up, or there will be a poor show for profit or a very light business in packing.

WHY ENDURE WHAT IS CURABLE?—"What can't be cured must be endured," says the proverb; but indigestion can be cured, and therefore it is the merest stupidity to endure it. Dyspeptics have certainly a right to continue dyspeptics to the end of their days if they choose, but as it is not supposed that any rational being prefers physical torment to case and health, the probability is that if all sufferers from indigestion were convinced that an absolute, infallible remedy for their complaint existed, they would with one accord resort to it. We most emphatically declare that such a remedy does exist, and that its name is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The record of its success extends over a period of more than twenty years, and it is fearlessly alleged that during the whole of that time it has never failed to afford permanent relief in any disorder or derangement of the stomach that was not organic, malignant, and incurable. The testimonials that go to establish this important fact can be counted by the thousands. Stomach complaints that have been aggrivated by a total disregard of all dietary rules, and intensified and rendered chronic by medicinal treatment or drastic purgation, have in hundreds of instances been cured within three months by the systematic use of this celebrated stomach and alterative. It should be remembered that weakness of the digestive organs involves many other ailments. Biliousness, headache, nervous debility, spasms, palpitation of the heart, rush of blood to the head, nausea, vertigo, and sleeplessness are among its concomitant results; and for all these the great vegetable tonic is a specific. It acts first upon the stomach upon these cretory and nervous systems and the bowels, its general effect being always genial and beneficent.

IF EITHER IS ELECTED

EVERY PERSON IN THE STATE

will want to get into some business that they can

MAKE A HANDSOME THING OF.

WE have two articles of our own invention and patent that is needed in every household, and meets with ready sale—both paying large profits—for which we wish to sell territory. We have all the territory of the United States to sell or exchange for good real estate, except the States of Michigan, Illinois, Ohio, Indiana, Alabama and three counties in the State of Georgia.

One of our inventions and patents is a Peach Seeder and Halver. With this machine, one hand can do the work of six or eight hands, and at the same time increasing the value of the fruit 25 to 30 per cent. when dried, as it cuts the peach in strictly halves and thereby prevents worms from getting in the dried fruit.

Men, in selling the machines, can make very easily if a good salesman from Five to Fifty Dollars per day, clear of all expense.

Having been a cotton planter, and being fond of farming, I would exchange the right to one or both articles for a specified amount of territory for a good plantation, with or without stock and provisions, in South Georgia or Middle Florida.

BLOOD PURIFIER

is unequaled by any known remedy. It will eradicate, extirpate and thoroughly destroy all poisonous substances in the Blood and will effectually dispel all predisposition to bilious derangement.

Is there want of action in your Liver and Spleen? Unless relieved at once the blood becomes impure by deleterious secretions, producing scrofulous or skin diseases, Blotches, Felons, Pustules, Canker, Pimples, etc.

Have you a Dyspeptic Stomach? Unless digestion is promptly aided the system is debilitated with loss of vital force, poverty of the blood, dropsical tendency, general weakness and inertia.

Have you a weakness of the Intestines? You are in danger of Chronic Diarrhoea or the dreadful Inflammation of the Bowels.

Have you weakness of the Uterine or Urinary Organs? You are exposed to suffering in its most aggravated form.

Are you dejected, drowsy, dull, sluggish or depressed in spirits, with head ache, back ache, coated tongue and bad tasting mouth?

For a certain remedy for all of these diseases, weaknesses and troubles; for cleansing and purifying the vitiated blood and imparting vigor to all the vital forces; for building up and restoring the weakened constitution USE which is pronounced by the leading medical authorities of London and Paris "the most powerful tonic and alterative known to the medical world." This is no new and untried discovery but has been long used by the leading physicians of other countries with wonderful remedial results.

Don't weaken or impair the digestive organs by cathartics and physics, they give only temporary relief—Indigestion, flatulency and dyspepsia with piles and kindred diseases are sure to follow their use.

Keep the blood pure and health is assured.

REMEMBER IT!

That I Challenge the World!

THAT THE COAL CREEK COAL COMPANY'S COAL is the best yet discovered, and that I am their sole agent for the sale of it South of Dalton.

It is for sale in my Coal Yard, between Peachtree and Broad streets, and near to Walton street. I solicit those who have not yet used it to give it a trial and compare its quality with other Coal offered for sale at the same price. I have sold the

in this city since 1867, and now offer it in any quantity, as wholesale or retail, from 20 cents worth up, thanking my numerous friends who have patronized me, asking a continuance of the same with a large increase in number.

This Coal was awarded the first prize at the last State Fair as the best GRATE COAL.

I have a certificate from Wm. C. Oastler, Esq., the owner of the English Road Steamer, that was exhibited at the last State Fair in this city, that it is the best Coal he could find in the United States (or any other country) for making steam.

I have to pay cash for the Coal and freight, therefore cannot sell it on credit.
